Losing history

- A local gun collector worries about what might be lost with proposed gun legislation

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

It's a collection that spans a century of wild west history. There are guns once owned by Buffalo Bill Cody, Sitting Bull and Roy Rogers. It is worth about half a million dollars, but it could be a lot slimmer this time next year if proposed federal legislation is adopted.

Don Malone (the names have been changed to protect the safety of the collection) has been collecting guns all of his life. But all his hard work, his precious collection and the history it represents could be lost once Alan Rock's proposed gun legislation is adopted by Parliament.

"The point we want to make is that this is a collection of historical pieces," Malone said. "And yet these guns fall under the same legislation as the guy who buys a fast shooter and holds up the 7-11."

Malone, who has one of the most comprehensive collections of Merwin and Hulbert guns in North America, will be forced to hand over many of the pieces to police if the legislation is adopted because they have barrels shorter than 4 inches.

Malone finds it ironic since he would never dare fire any of the pieces.

"These guns are too valuable," he said. "They are all black powder guns and if you fired it with ammunition from today, it would probably blow up the gun and the hand holding it. The powder they use today is just too strong."

But for Malone, the issue is not over firing the weapons or thing about crime in Canada, but I think they are barking up the wrong tree," he said. "There should be at least a historical sake.

"Don has to be the most non-violent person you are ever going to meet," she said. "When we first moved out to the ranch, Don used to get up early in the morning to go hunting. He never came back with anything. I used to think he was just a bad hunter until I overheard him tell someone that he goes out and sits under one tree all day and when a deer comes by, he says 'if you're here tomorrow, I'm going to have to shoot you'. We even have to pay the neighbors to shoot at the coyotes."

Malone said he also opposes the legislation because he does not feel safe with the registration system. He was harassed a few years ago by an avid collector who had managed to break into a government computer and find out his telephone number and address.

"This guy phoned repeatedly because he wanted to buy one of the pieces I have," Malone said. "He even managed to get a land description out of the computer and showed up at our door one morning. That really made us feel threatened."

But one of the Malones' biggest objections to the proposed legislation is the fact that they will not be able to leave the collection to their son.

Malone said just the threat of the legislation being adopted has already caused ripples in the gun collecting community. He knows of several collectors who have begun to ship their collections down to the United States.

Part of history. This gun collection, belonging to a local rancher, showcases a life time of interest in old west history. able," he said. "They are all black powder guns and if you fired it with ammunition from today, it would probably blow up the gun and the hand holding it. The having guns that could be used in the commission of a crime, it is strictly about losing an important piece of history.

"I know they need to do some-gun exemption."

Malone's wife Linda agreed that their opposition to the legislation has nothing to do with gun collecting for weaponry's changes for us," Jordan said. "Likely the biggest change will be in branch line abandonment by the rail lines. The government has lifted the prohibition on abandonment and that could affect our operations."

But Jordan said the wheat pool expects the biggest impact will be on the farmer. She said farmers now pay approximately $15 per tonne to ship grain and other oilseed; and another $15 is picked up by the railroads thanks to the Crow rate. Under the new budget, farmers will have to pick up the full $30 cost.

But for farmers like Larry Mullen, who farms northeast of Didsbury, the elimination of the Crow rate will not be a severe blow to business. Mullen said he already ships much of his grain by truck to southern Alberta where it is sold as feed. Where he

Although no one is sure quite how, farmers and wheat pools expect the grain business will be changing now that the federal government has decided to cut the Crow rate benefit.

The benefit, paid to railways to help subsidize the cost of transporting prairie grain to export market ports, will be eliminated this year under the new federal budget. This year the subsidy is estimated to be $560 million.

Perhaps one of the bigger impacts will be on the Alberta Wheat Pool elevator business. Trish Jordan, a spokesperson for AWP, said they are not sure how big that impact will be.

RCMP deal with rash of burglaries

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Didsbury RCMP are looking for anyone who might have information about several break, enter and theft incidents which occurred in Didsbury and Carstairs last week.

Last Wednesday and Thursday, March 8 and 9, the Carstairs Co-op was hit twice by thieves who smashed into the grocery store and stole cartons of cigarettes. RCMP said 38 cartons were stolen during the first incident and nine were stolen in the second.

Thieves also broke into Parkland Agri Services in the Didsbury industrial park on March 9. RCMP said a number of valuable items were taken in the theft including a lap top computer, a printer and a computer keyboard.

Another grocery store, this time Didsbury's Mayfair Foods, was broken into sometime during the night between March 9 and 10. Thieves smashed in the front door of the store and stole an undisclosed amount of cash.

On March 10, during the early morning another incident occurred at Hugh Sutherland School in Carstairs in which a window was broken on the south side of the school. RCMP said no one gained access.

Although the incidents occurred close together, RCMP said, at this time, they only believe the two Co-op burglaries to be related. Investigation is continuing into the other incidents. Anyone with information is asked to call the RCMP at 335-3381 or CrimeStoppers at 1-800-241-TIPS.

Town council notes

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Town council has agreed to pay framing costs for 15 pieces of artwork entrusted to the town from its twin in Oyama, Japan.

The pieces were gifts to the town from Oyama representative Atsuka Kita, who has visited Didsbury twice since talks of twinning the towns began two years ago.

The artwork, comprised of 10 original art pieces and five photographs, will be framed at a cost of approximately $600. The art work will then be displayed at a location to be determined at a later date.

Whether or not a concession booth will be able to set up at Didsbury's tourism booth will be decided by town council's general government services committee.

The town received a letter requesting permission to set up a bus concession stand at the tourism booth located near the campground during the summer months. The letter also indicated that the concession owners would be willing to run the tourism booth.

But council is also looking into moving the tourism information booth to Didsbury's Eldon Foote Hall. An advertisement requesting proposals for a business to run in conjunction with the booth has been placed but to date, no proposals have been received.

Town council has declared April 23 to 29 in Didsbury to be Volunteer Week, an annual event in town set aside to celebrate the contributions of volunteers. Council also declared March 21 as International Day for Elimination of Racial Discrimination as suggested by the United Nations.

Town council has again divided up its Public Transportation Operating Assistance grant to help out community groups. The grant is given to the town annually by the provincial government, but this year it came under the Municipal Unconditional Grant program. STARS will receive $4385, a cost of $1.29 per capita. The local Lion's Club, which operates the handibus, will receive $3000, the Mountain View Health Care Centre, recently re-named Didsbury and District Health Services under the regionalization plan, will receive $1500 and the Mountain View Association for the Mentally Handicapped will receive $1958.

New camping fees for the Rosebud Valley campground have been set by town council. The new rate for electrified stalls will be $12 per night per stall and for non-electrified stall, the rate will be $10 per night. Last year's rates were $11 and $9 respectively.

Students prepare for Mexico trip

by Neil Widish
Review writer

On April 7th, 36 Olds Koinonia Christian School students will leave for their annual Mexico missions trip.

Being an outreach mission, the team will also include three Red Deer Koinonia students, two Cremona students, one person from Cherry Coulee and two Olds students. A select few are going from Didsbury. Seven fluent interpreters are taking the trip to Mexicali too, a large border town due south of California.

All participants are required to take an additional 16 hours of rigorous class study on how to give out lessons and personal testimonies, sing Spanish songs and learn different Spanish phrases, how to work efficiently with the interpreters and to gain basic knowledge on the cultural differences.

Upon arrival, the group will meet up with about 500 other people from across North America, mainly church and youth groups, all with a basic ministries goal in mind. While camping on the desert floor in tents and sleeping bags, about one week will be dedicated to the residents of the town, people who moved there in hopes of finding jobs. "There's a lot of fast growing border cities from free trade. People are trying to find jobs" said coordinator Paul Casurella.

The entire journey will be taken by bus and participants will sleep in churches and schools to and from Mexico.

in order to keep it intact. Malone himself is afraid if he doesn't keep on top of changing legislation he may lose more than just the guns.

"I have a history on every gun I own," he said. "And I have an extensive gun book collection that is also very valuable. But if I happen to have one gun that suddenly breaks the law, or the police believe I have a gun that breaks the law, they can take the entire collection. Not just the guns but also anything in the house related to guns."

In order to help save his collection, Malone said he is looking into having his ranch declared a museum. He hopes to talk with other museum curators over the next few weeks to find out if museum status will help save his collection. If not, he is considering moving his collection to the U.S. where he owns property.

"That isn't something I want to do," he said. "But if we have a choice between that and handing over the pieces to be destroyed... it would just be such a shame to lose that part of Canadian history."

Ratepayers to see an increase in property taxes

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

Didsbury's municipal budget has yet to be passed by town council, but local property owners can expect to see an increase in their taxes this year regardless of the mill rate.

A change in assessment procedures from construction costs minus depreciation to market value means most home owners can expect to see an increase on their tax bill this year.

Town Administrator Mike Storey said assessments have gone up nearly double for town residential properties since the new assessment was completed last month. Commercial assessments have actually decreased to better represent the market picture.

That means residential property owners will pay more if the mill rate stays the same as last year while commercial property owners will pay less.

Storey said the mill rate will likely shift to help offset some of the increase, but residential property owners can still expect to be paying more tax. He said an average value home can expect a $100 increase this year based on last year's mill rate. The new assessment procedure also means residential property owners will be paying a greater share of the town's total revenues as compared to commercial property owners. The new budget is expected to be introduced at the March 22 town council meeting.

Property owners will be getting an information package in the mail this week outlining the new assessment. Appointments will be set up with the town's assessor for rate payers who feel the assessment is mistaken and for those who want more information.

School board begins hiring

by Janice Harrington
Review Editor

The new Chinook's Edge Regional school board has announced more additions to its permanent staff.

Susan Roy, a former County of Red Deer employee has been hired as the school board's new treasurer. Brenda Blanchard, also formerly of Red Deer, was selected to fill the executive secretary's position. Both have been working in the jobs under temporary contracts since the board was officially formed last January.

The board also appointed Herman Dewolde, from the County of Mountain View, as its new director of Maintenance. Bill Tolley from the Mountain View county office was made the new purchasing agent. Wayne Reis, from Red Deer, was named assistant director of maintenance.

Previously, the only permanent employees hired under the new school board were the Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Altha Neilson, who took over the position after being superintendent for the County of Red Deer, and former County of Mountain View Superintendent Shirley Van Eaton, who was named Assistant Superintendent. Van Eaton later turned down her contract with the school board.

Several more positions have yet to be filled with the new school board. Neilson said she will be working with the two counties to list all jobs available in the three jurisdictions.

expects to feel the crunch is in the canola market.

"Much of our canola goes out by rail and if those prices increase then our costs will increase," he said.

But Mullen said he doesn't feel the Crow rate cut is a bad idea.

"I think it will help get rid of some of the inefficiencies in the rail line service," he said. "It should also help out local truckers because many farmers are looking at shipping down to the south, into the U.S."

That change in shipment direction, from east-west to north-south, could also impact significantly on the wheat pool, according to Jordan.

"It (that change is made) by local farmers, then that could have an affect on our west coast terminal operations," she said. "We have a significant investment there."

Both Mullen and Jordan said they expect the elimination of the Crow will also impact on crop growth in this area. If prices rise significantly for local farmers, then we can expect to see more diversification.

"This might change what kind of crops farmers put in," Mullen said. "We might expect to see a lot more barely being grown because we can sell that locally."

Facing the future

by Elaine Wilson

For those of you with iron stomachs, here's something to ponder over your cornflakes:

"Society must face the concept that we kill off the old, weak, the stupid, the inefficient."

How does that grab you? Misguided and abhorrent as his conclusions may be, the writer responsible for this column's opening quote is in fact raising a valid concern. Somehow, at some point, some plan will have to be implemented to control the number of people residing and arriving daily on the planet because the term 'population explosion' is not a cliché. It is a sinister reality. The worldwide population is reportedly growing at a rate approaching two percent per annum. Compound that over 5,500 years and the mass of humanity will overtake that of the earth. And that, ladies and gentlemen, simply cannot happen.

American lawyer-turned-social-commentator Jason Brent sparked an international uproar with his slate of possible 'solutions' to the problem in a letter published in the November 1994 MENSA newsletter.

MENSA, I should mention, has emphatically stated that Brent's sentiments are neither shared nor endorsed by MENSA newsletter staff, the MENSA organization itself, nor its officers.

But back to Brent's proposals:

"First population must be stabilized, and then it must decrease. Whether we like it or not, the sole function of the government, the state, society, morality, etc., must be to kill the old, the weak, the stupid and those unable to survive in a highly technological society. AND [he continued in capital letters] I AM NOT ADOLPH HITLER."

Dancing around the atrocities Hitler employed, Brent stopped short of outright condemnation to debate semantics: "...the crime Hitler committed... [prevented] a rational [italics mine] discussion of the creation of the master race." Apparently Brent was in an ambitious mood the day he wrote his infamous letter. Enraging the Jewish community was seemingly not enough; he evidently felt compelled to inflame the Catholic population as well: "...The two greatest criminals who ever lived, the two individuals who have caused the most harm to the human species are Pope John Paul II and Adolph Hitler...Pope John Paul for taking the position that artificial birth control is immoral and incorrect."

On the off chance that someone might be offended at having been overlooked in his diatribe, he took a parting shot at parents. "Anyone having more than two children deprives everyone else the right to survive. The greatest crime anyone can commit is having more than two children."

Family and faith aside, who's going to want all the gory details should Brent's nightmarish scenario actually come to pass? Reporters, as a group, are no less altruistic than any other, but before offering the ultimate sacrifice, shouldn't we be allowed input into gauging the redundancy quotient of other groups?

Topping my list: Drivers of recreational vehicles who seem to delight in trapping seething convoys of motorists behind their tin bunkers on wheels through mountain passes. Am I the only one who resents obstruction of a scenic panorama by a solid wall of inane bumper stickers chugging along in front of you just a tad faster than Ralph Klein on an exer-cycle?

Just to be on the safe side since none of us can be sure how the future will play out, it might be a good idea to brush up on our computer skills. If Brent's vision were to actually come into play during our lifetimes, advanced technological expertise could well spell the difference between making the team roster or hitting the showers. Literally.

Quote of the Week:

"There are many 22s with no serial numbers, many Coeys especially. It would take no time at all to file the serial numbers off any gun. Then what good would registration do? How would you trace those?"

A local gun collector expressing his opinion on the futility of universal gun registration as proposed under a new bill now in Parliament.

The public opinion

by Ken Luck
Recreation Director,
Town of Didsbury

There is a great deal of evidence supporting the personal and public health benefits of physical activity and physical fitness. Given the positive relationship between physical activity, fitness and good health, it is reasonable to expect that an increase in physical activity and fitness in the employee population would result in decreased absenteeism in the work place.

It is now apparent that absenteeism from the work place represents a tremendous cost to industry. In a study of 14 Canadian corporations, the Conference Board of Canada has reported that the average net cost factor for an absent worker in Canada is 1.26 times that of the employee's wage. In total the average cost to each organization as a result of absenteeism has been estimated to be $1,701 per year per employee. In terms of overall dollars lost due to absenteeism in the work place, it has been calculated that in the United States, if the frequency of absenteeism fell by just one day per year for each employee over one billion dollars in savings would be realized.

Evidence is also available to support the operation of work place fitness programs or facilities. Participants who adhered to a work site fitness program displayed a 22 percent reduction in absenteeism compared to non-participants. Absenteeism decreased by an average of 1.2 days per year for participants in a work site fitness program. In addition research indicates that individuals actively involved in work site fitness programs have fewer sick hours and lower non-hospital costs than non-participants.

Physical activity behavior and physical fitness has been shown to be positively related to reduced absenteeism. However, there still remains a need to explore the ability of work place physical activity and fitness promotion programs to positively change the behavior of the sedentary and unfit members of the work force. Medical research indicates that the largest benefits of physical activity can be gained from moving the sedentary portion of the population a little rather than the active portion of the population a great deal.

If this principle is applied to the work force it would be expected that the largest reduction in absenteeism gained from physical activity promotion in the work place would be achieved by targeting the sedentary portion of the work force. Successful behavioral change of these employees would allow both the individual and the corporation to enjoy the benefits of a physically active lifestyle. By working to show that physical activity promotion efforts of industry can produce real cost saving benefits, corporations could be motivated to assume a larger portion of physical activity and fitness promotion currently shouldered by the public sector.

Waking to harsh realities

Dear Editor:

Vi-o-late v. to break the law or a rule; to disrupt or disturb a person's privacy...

My son came home the other day from a good friend's and bluntly announced that a woman, a woman here in Water Valley, had been sexually assaulted. "Well," I thought, "he's been watching too much television!"

Denial is a strange thing in a crisis, it can be very convenient; a damper on truth, a panacea for a shocking event in a community that I've come to know and love.

My trust and faith in my immediate surroundings, my neighborhood, had seriously diminished the following day when this horrific rumor was relayed to me as the truth. If a violation disrupts or disturbs a person's privacy, then I certainly feel violated.

Miraculously, through the diligent detective work of a few members of this community and RCMP members, the perpetrator was apprehended within thirty hours. Imagine my shock, though, to then discover that he had been living in my neighborhood.

I personally exercise frequently; I cycle, cross-country ski, walk, jog, go on jaunts with the kids, midnight walks with my husband and generally enjoy the "great outdoors" to the fullest. I was under the misguided impression that in this hallowed hamlet, the only thing I really had to fear were the wandering moose, an occasional famished coyote, or my dog - scaring me silly - jumping out at me from the dark. I no longer feel safe and nor should you.

My heart goes out to the victim of this heinous crime. If I feel violated as a concerned citizen, I seriously can't imagine how she must feel as the one who was so brutally assaulted!

An act like this is unforgivable. We all have to work together as a community to ensure that our daughters, our sisters, our mothers and our friends, do not become the next victim. Reach-out, band together, get to know one another better. Let's all seriously make an effort to put a stop to violence against women.

Still disturbed in Water Valley

Keeping their due

Dear Editor:

Contrary to some present day statements that Old Age Security payments are not funded by a special tax, I present these facts to you. In 1962 and 1963 Old Age Security tax was 3 percent of taxable income or $90 whichever was less. The following three years it was increased to 4 percent of taxable income or $120 whichever was less. In 1967 and subsequent years, the tax was included in the tax amount payable without being listed separately. It was NOT removed as a tax, only hidden with the $120 limit removed. To reach the 1966 limit, taxable earnings needed to be only $3,000. Greater earnings in 1967 and later years to the present time paid a larger amount toward Old Age Security; not as a premium toward a pension upon retirement but to fund the plan on an ongoing basis.

Having paid the hidden tax on earnings until retirement in 1983 and on pension and savings income since that time I would like to point out that denying it by politicians is at best ignorance of what has been and is being done and at worst an attempt to try to deprive senior citizens of their due rewards.

By-law officer's version on permit fees

Dear Editor:

I would like to clarify some of the statements made in the Didsbury Review, February 21, 1995 issue under the heading "Safety Code Changes Could Cost Town".

- Alberta Labour does not presently offer subsidized licenses and inspection services, they charge an average $100 per hour.

- The word "permits" should be substituted for licenses.

- The province will not issue permits or do any inspections in the future.

- The town has provided building permits and inspections and fire protection inspections in the past and this will not likely change.

- The town may at its own convenience take on the responsibility for electrical, plumbing and gas permits currently offered through the Dept. of Labour in Red Deer.

- The town may set fees for these permits and inspections and may actually set them based on making a profit or breaking even.

- In no case will the changes to the Safety Code Act cost the Town. Just like any other service provided by towns and municipalities, they may use various rates as a means to encourage development. The trade-off, of course, being the increased tax base, residents and services provided through increased development. There will not be any huge bills to the taxpayers because of competition or as a result of the Safety Codes Act.

While the Safety Codes Act has substantial administration and structural changes, there is virtually no down side or potential cost to the town.

Mountain View Health Care Centre has been providing care to Long Term Care Residents of this district since 1967. These past twenty-eight years provided us the foundation to make good decisions that will take us well into the next century. One of the problems that we have been facing for a number of years though, is the integration of cognitively disabled (Alzheimer's) residents with residents who are cognitively well. It becomes an unpleasant living environment for both groups when they are forced to be together. It is also difficult for our staff to provide the quality of care they strive for. For this reason, we are heading in a new direction with our provision of care. We will be providing care to our 100 residents in three separate, unique environments. Each unit will strive to meet the individual needs of their resident group.

GROUP ONE is our physically disabled group and will be together on a 19 bed unit in the newer acute care building, opened in 1984.

GROUP TWO, is our largest resident population, the Alzheimer's group - they will be together in a 46 bed unit which we plan to renovate to provide a home-like environment, helping these residents to function at their very best.

GROUP THREE is our highest cognitively functioning group, situated on a 35 bed unit in the "old" nursing home.

It is our mission to provide care to each group in the best way we know. For this reason, our staff had the opportunity to choose which resident group they felt they would work best with. We also standardized rotations hospital wide in order to be most efficient with our declining resources. These standardizations created less positions, which in turn created a small saving of dollars. It is important to note that through this re-organization, our staff to resident ratio DID NOT CHANGE. We feel confident that we can provide a higher level of care than before and still save valuable dollars.

If you have any questions about any of our Long Term Care programs, please feel free to contact the Director of Patient Care Services at 335-9393. It is only through dialogue with our community at large that we can know what your concerns might be. Mountain View Health Care Centre, together with the whole of Health Authority #5, is dedicated to the provision of quality care.

Board of Directors Alberta Women's Enterprise Initiative

The Federal Government recognizes the important role women entrepreneurs are playing in the economy and is committed to setting up programs to help them meet their goals. One such program is the Alberta Women's Enterprise Initiative (AWEI), a non-profit entity designed to assist women entrepreneurs to start or expand businesses and take them beyond the home-based "micro-enterprise" development stage. To enhance its position in the Alberta community and to bring guidance, counsel and financial accountability to the Organization, a volunteer Board of Directors is being established.

The Board of Directors, comprised of entrepreneurs who possess a strong financial or business background, will have a solid understanding of issues facing women entrepreneurs in Alberta. As a Board Member, you will help to develop and implement a strategic plan consistent with the objectives of the Initiative. You will ensure that the financial business and affairs of the AWEI are conducted in accordance with the bylaws and policies established. Acting as a spokesperson for the AWEI, you will liaise with appropriate levels of government, the media and affiliated community organizations.

If you would like to become a Board member for AWEI, please respond in complete confidence to Irene Pfeiffer, quoting Project 6404, by March 20, 1995.

Twelve years of beautiful music

Organizers remember origins of the Kiwanis Music Festival

by Elaine Wilson
Review writer

Prior to 1983, raw talent in the County of Mountain View and surrounding areas was spilling out of church doors, rec rooms and school auditoriums. Unfortunately, those unwilling or unable to travel had no forum beyond local recitals to learn from experts or demonstrate their progress. A group of music aficionados changed all that by establishing the Olds and District Music Festival Society twelve years ago.

Registration of the Society through the Kiwanis Club affords the Society a measure of continuity that would be difficult to maintain otherwise.

"It wouldn't be possible without the Kiwanis Club," festival originator Jim Spicer said.

"The Kiwanis Club has been extremely supportive," charter member Bea Dodd agreed.

Other long time supporters include the Olds Agricultural Society, the Royal Canadian Legion, the County of Mountain View, The Town of Olds and a host of individuals and organizations who have donated untold hours and dollars toward making the concept a reality.

A year of intensive preparations paved the way for what is now known as the Kiwanis Music Festival.

"We had 360 participants the first year," Spicer said. "It's gone to 905 entries; some 4200 people are involved in 1995."

The original budget surged correspondingly, from less than $2000 in 1983 to today's figure of $20,000. Funds for printing materials, administration and adjudicator fees are raised through membership fees, commercial and individual donations, along with donations from local service groups and governmental agencies.

"It's one of the few cultural events that the Olds area has," Spicer said.

Beyond giving residents a chance to see and hear local talent at their best, the learning opportunities are of great benefit to all involved.

"It's not a competition," Bea Dodd said. "Competition is not the focus. Everyone involved has learned so much from some very talented people. There are a lot of workshops going on. The adjudicators will take half an hour, or an hour and work with a group on an individual basis; and [the organizers] learn a lot too."

From a (literally) 'kitchen table' operation at the Spicer home, the behind the scenes work has evolved into a fully computerized procedure.

"It wouldn't be possible to do it by hand today," Alma Spicer, past secretary/treasurer said. "When we started, I was making out adjudication sheets and schedules by hand. I didn't have time for laundry, dishes, nothing- it was all volunteer work on our own time."

Long time festival supporter Hugh Robinson made the initial conversion to computer recording; his work is currently being maintained by Festival Committee President Linda Weber and her husband Horst.

The diligence and commitment of people from Airdrie to Innisfail assures the continued success of the Festival, the Spicers said.

"There are an awful lot of dedicated people," Jim Spicer said. "It's a community effort."

"At first it didn't seem possible," Alma Spicer added. "But with the help of people like Marlene Skeet, Dr. Allan Stewart, Dr. Dvorak, Mr. Rush, who tunes the pianos for free, Mrs. Cora Molstead, and, oh, there are so many people who helped, we couldn't have done it on our own."

When asked to name their favorite segment, the Spicers pondered the program and responded:

"The Grand Concert and Awards night. We always take that in."

The Festival is currently in full swing in various venues throughout Olds. The Grand Concert is slated for Tuesday March 28 in the Deer Meadow School auditorium.

Watching it grow. Jim and Alma Spicer saw the need to fit a little culture into life in Olds and so they helped to create the Kiwanis Music Festival. Since they began the festival 12 years ago, it has grown beyond their expectations, encompassing musicians from all over central Alberta and hundreds of volunteers. Elaine Wilson photo

Another way to prevent tooth decay

News from the Mount View Health Unit

Special to the Review

Sealants, sometimes referred to as pit and fissure sealants, are plastic protective coatings placed on the chewing surfaces of back teeth. As the name implies, they act as a barrier to "seal" the grooves, pits, fissures and other irregularities of teeth against decay. These are generally the areas at greatest risk to decay. In addition to keeping out plaque and food, sealants also produce a smoother surface that is easier to clean.

Sealants are inexpensive. They cost less than $20 per tooth and may be even less if more than one tooth is sealed in the same area of the mouth. This fee is considerably lower than the cost of repairing or filling a decayed tooth. It is also more likely for a tooth which has been filled to need a replacement filling or crown some time in the future. Sealants can prevent that expensive chain of events from happening.

Sealants may wear away or chip with time. Therefore, it is very important to have sealants checked at regular dental appointments. As well as being cost effective, the application of a sealant is painless, simple and quick.

Didsbury High School news

Special to the Review

March, as is often predictable, came in the midst of stormy weather. Teachers drove to Calgary for convention lectures and seminars as well as displays and workshops to update their skills and thus become students themselves.

Snowy conditions were exactly what Mr. Drever and Miss Baker wanted for their annual Physical Education 10/20 and 30 ski trips to Nakiska. In addition to these athletes, there will be others traveling this weekend to Canmore for the Senior Girls' Basketball zones and to Black Diamond for the Senior Boys' Basketball zones.

Senior Band students were also away from school this past week for competitions in both Banff and Vancouver.

Ms. Turner is busy at school organizing a unit on International Travel and Multiculturalism for her grade nine students.

Our office is bidding a fond farewell this week to Roxanna Martindale, one of our secretaries.

We are also welcoming Jeanette Robertson who will be taking over Mrs. Martindale's position (as she moves on to work at Hugh Sutherland School in Carstairs).

New board members for Chinnook's Edge will be visiting Didsbury schools in the near future. Students have volunteered to take them on a tour of our facilities.

Lastly, and with pride, we announce the Honor Roll students from the first semester.

News from Westglen School

by Nic Dykstra and Kristi Trewin
Special to the Review

Hello again from Westglen School. Our sports teams have been very successful this year. The girls' basketball team, coached by Mr. Green, placed third among the county teams while the boys' team with Mr. Miller had an undefeated season and placed first after beating Olds in the final game. We are proud of all the members of the teams. Many Westglen students participated in the Knights of Columbus free throw contest held in January and February. With basketball finished for the season, school athletes are looking forward to the badminton season.

We have many different activities happening all the time at Westglen. The Grade 5s having doing a social dance unit in Phys. Ed. and the Grade 6s are doing fun things in their unit on Ancient Greece, even trying Greek food! The grade 6, 7 and 8 concert and the 7 and 8 stage bands are competing at the Kiwanis Music Festival in Olds on March 7-10. On March 7, both the Grade 7 and 8 bands received Distinction awards, which are even higher than gold awards! The Grade 8 concert band is travelling to Edmonton on March 22 and 23 to participate in a music festival there. We wish them all good luck.

Mrs. Whitlow and Mrs. Iverson from Ross Ford are busy with their School Patrollers every day after school. All the patrollers are looking forward to their bowling in Olds on March 16 after school. If you have any questions call Mrs. Whitlow at the school.

The Student Council had a successful, if cold, ski trip to Fortress Mountain on February 17. We would like to thank our parent and teacher supervisors for all their help: Mrs. Toth, Mrs. Kemmere, Mr. Burch, Mr. Sewandt, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Papke, Mr. Krupich and Mrs. Trewin and Mrs. Israelson. We're looking forward to the next trip on March 17.

We couldn't have all our Student Council activities without money, so many thanks to Mrs. Hansen for organizing the magazine subscription campaign and to every one who sold all the subscriptions and renewals. We sold $14,600 in subscriptions. Of that, Westglen earned $3,600, after all prizes and promotion items were calculated. Because we sold more than $12,000, Mr.

Overguard and Ms. Irvine agreed to have their hair styled by the other. At an assembly we all watched as Ms. Irvine gave Mr. O the newest do complete with pig tails and ribbons and colored spray! Mr. O then styled Ms. Irvine's hair using animal grooming techniques. He even gave her an egg shampoo! They were both wonderful sports and spent the whole day looking lovely! Because we earned more than $14,000 Mr. Petkau fulfilled his promise to spend some time on the roof of the school. Is that what they mean by being on top of things, Mr. Petkau?

Our top seller was Jesse Ahlgrim of 5B. He chose a color television as his prize. Our second seller was Kent Mullen who chose a black and white set for his efforts. Grade 5B was the top selling class and will receive ice cream floats. Grade 6B was the second class with their sales. They will be treated to doughnuts.

Since January 1, we have a new staff member. Mrs. Deanne Trewin has lived in Didsbury for many years but has only recently achieved her Bachelor of Education degree. Mrs. Trewin went to school at Red Deer College and at the University of Calgary. She has taken the position left by Mrs. Pantaleo in our Learning Resource Centre. She says she's lucky to have gotten a position so soon after completing her studies. Mrs. Trewin enjoys the friendly staff and students the most at Westglen. She says she is happy she lives in such a friendly town with all the support of friends and family. We all hope that Mrs. Trewin has a great first year and welcome to Westglen.

LIESEMER

Aylmer J.E. Liesemer, former Didsbury resident, passed away January 4, 1995 in Toronto.

Aylmer was born in Didsbury in 1906 and was schooled there until he entered the University of Alberta to study. It was there that he became interested in politics. He made his first foray into public life after being elected as a Labor alderman in Calgary in 1934.

In 1944, Aylmer made a successful run for the Alberta Legislature as a CCF representative. He served two terms in that office before returning to teach in Calgary.

Previous to his election, Aylmer had taught history, geography and social studies at Crescent Heights High School under principal William Aberhart. He returned to his teaching job at Crescent after his tenure in the Legislature. He retired in 1970.

Despite his short term in office, Aylmer never wavered from his belief in socialist politics or his loyalty to the CCF.

A memorial service will be held at the Unitarian Church of Calgary, 1703 - 1st Street NW on Tuesday, March 14 at 2pm. The Most Reverend Roderick Brown will officiate. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

In Memoriam

Allen James (Jim) Howard

A tribute of love and remembrance for my loving husband Jim, whom God called home March 19, 1994.

"I bless the day I met you,
The day God made you mine,
We promised to love each other,
Till the end of time.
Jim please walk with me throughout my life,
So I am not alone,
I see you in our children,
Your warm and gentle face,
The comfort that, that gives me,
Nothing can replace.
You were so strong and patient,
Through the years you struggled on,
Your hands that made our house and home,
Are now forever gone.
So God please take a message,
To my husband up above,
Tell him how much I miss him,
And give him all my love."
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered everyday by your loving wife, Delores.

Allen -- James (Jim) Howard

A tribute of love and remembrance for our loving father and "De-de" (grandpa), who left us one year ago March 19, 1994.

"Don't grieve for me, from pain, I'm free,
I'm following the path of God has led,
you see.

I took his hand when I heard his call,
I turned around and left it all.
I could not stay another day,
To laugh, to love, to work or play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way,
I found the peace on a wintry day.
If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joys.
A family shared, a laugh, a kiss,
Oh yes, these things I too will miss.
Be not burdened with times of sorrow,
I wish you the sunshine of tomorrow.
My life's been full, I've savoured so much,
Good family, good times, a loved ones touch.
Perhaps my time seemed all too brief,
Don't lengthen it now with undue grief.
Lift up your hearts, and peace to thee,
God wanted me now,
From pain I'm free.

Lovingly remembered and sadly missed your children, Colleen (Larry)

Tracy Kasprick Looking for volunteers

Tracy Kasprick is looking for a few good men (and women). The Volunteer Bank will need "upwards of 250" volunteers for the Big Country Games coordinator Tracy Kasprick reported. To date, organizers have only registered the names of "a handful" and time is of the essence in an event of this magnitude. "There's a job for everybody," Kasprick said. "From those interested in sports activities, to protocol, to transportation, to communication, registration, culture, we've got a list of the different categories [available at the Didsbury Town Office]. Anybody willing to help out with anything, there is a slot for them. For example, someone interested in the equestrian events, people are needed to set up jumps, we'll need people to keep statistics, help in the clerical end, accounting, that kind of thing." Time restrictions need not preclude participation; organizers advise volunteers can furnish from "one or two hours before an event" up to "weeks or months". Those seeking further information can reach Kasprick at 335-9255.

St. Patrick's Tea and Bake Sale

College Green residents brought the green indoors at their Tea and Bake sale last Saturday. Over 80 people ambled through the doors qualifying it as "a complete success," one organizer said. Residents of the College Green complex in addition to those pictured (Edith Eros, Emma Stauffer, Martha Felker, Lena Klassen and Gladys Krebs) said weather played a large part in the day's success, but the warm atmosphere was aseasonally temperate indoors. "We're family here. We try to work together. This is our first St. Patrick's Day Tea, but we've had New Year's parties, card games, sing alongs and films." Baked goodies and canned goods (including 'canned potatoes') were provided by the residents and the tasty green sherbet topping the angel food cake was purchased locally from Palm Dairies. The money raised will go toward upkeep and maintenance in the College Green recreation centre.

Sussana Gerber trading the Alps for the Rockies

Swiss imports Hans and Sussana Gerber love Didsbury but "miss the chocolate". After two years in Canada, the Gerbers, who operate a dairy farm west of Didsbury, still sustain their cache through family and friends who regularly dispatch family sized blocks of Swiss chocolate overseas. It's a long way from the Gerber's home town of Rueti (about 60 kilometres from Zurich) to Didsbury, but the terrain is comfortably similar. "Swiss people like to be in the mountains," Sussana Gerber said. The Gerbers, both avid skiers, eagerly await their chance to head for the slopes themselves, but until their children are old enough, they are content to follow the pursuits of world class skiers. Their interest is partially due to the fact that one of the Swiss national team members (Heidi Zeller) also happens to be the wife of Sussana Gerber's cousin. "She was very good this winter, she made some first place [runs] and some seconds," Gerber said. But on general principal, the Gerber's, like many local parents, appreciate accessibility to sporting venues and plan to make good use of them. "When [our children] are old enough we want them to learn to ski, or play hockey, some sport. It's good for them, good for the body, good conditioning."

Peg Wigton 7th Annual Stud Sale

"Water Valley is a really warm community," said Peg Wigton, Community Association Social Convenor. Moving from warm to "some pretty hot stuff", the seventh Annual Stallion Service and Merchandise Auction is slated to kick off at the Saloon at 7:30 on March 17 and will "probably run until after midnight," Wigton said. Videos of the stallions will run continuously all night, displaying the featured studs including registered quarter horses, appaloosas, paints (including a bay Tobiano paint) and from the unregistered stock, a 3/4 Morgan- 1/4 Thoroughbred and a buckskin quarter horse. Other featured items up for grabs include: Water Valley Golf Course games, paint ball adventures, a spa party for 12, an assortment of animal care and feed products, art works and handicrafts donated by local artists, border collie pups, peat moss, para-gliding tickets and some good clean fun at the Calgary Zoo (something dubbed the 'bathe-the-elephants' prize). Always a popular attraction, the Calgary Fire-fighter 'hot stuff' calendar models will once again be looking for high bidders. Further information can be obtained by calling Wigton at 637-2688.

Restoration on a grand scale

• Rebuilding a historical house a real labor of love

by Elaine Wilson
Review writer

What makes a historic house a home?

Plenty of time, sweat and enthusiasm.

In the case of Anna and Phil Landon, who are meticulously restoring Didsbury's Hiebert house literally inch by inch, one can also add: exhaustive research, resourceful strategies in locating supplies and manufacturing specialists and above all, commitment.

The Landons sold their Calgary home to purchase Hiebert House in 1990 after a friend who shares their love of historic structures delivered them to the door step New Year's Day.

"My first reaction was, 'This place needs to be saved,'" Anna Landon said. "We can't let it go down."

Their enthusiasm survived a tour of the third floor where gaping holes in the roof made the top floor a soiled bird and bat sanctuary. Torrents of rain water had stained the walls down all three stories. The smell of decay and wood rot pervaded the entire house. Many one of a kind features, including stained glass windows, the ornate stair banister and the detailed Tigerstripe oak fireplace were in dire need of repair. The roof was a write off and the wood floors, baseboards and intricately designed moldings on each of the three floors would have to be stripped and refinished. The exterior looked even more daunting.

The Landons knew they would be drawing on every particle of knowledge they'd gleaned from past experience. Phil, an electrical contractor and Anna, who was formerly employed with a construction firm prior to the move to Didsbury, rolled up their sleeves and literally dug in.

"Nothing here was simple. Everything had to be milled, custom, right down to having to have the knives made to cut the wood," Landon said.

Maintaining authentic building techniques, all materials used in the restoration process mirror those of the original builders. Just as the original builders had done, the Landons completed the outside first and then moved inside. The roof was replaced, using specially crafted cedar shingles. The lattice work, unique in it's perpendicular (as opposed to the common slanted variety) design was recreated by hand. The widow's walk, which had been totally razed, was replicated accurately using historic photographs now on display at the Didsbury Museum.

The cost both emotionally and financially has often been steep but the Landons are taking each phase one step at a time as their schedule and budget permits. Along the way the rewards have ranged from amusing to deeply gratifying.

"We found some old letters from World War I [inside the walls] saying what the [livestock] was selling for and a power bill."

The power bill for the month amounted to seven cents. The reason it was so 'high', Landon explained, was due to a past due amount of four cents plus one cent interest.

The interest and patience shown by neighbors and feedback from visitors touches the Landons. The three open house events held to date have generated lively responses.

"Over 600 people showed up for the first one," Landon said, gratified by shared stories and appreciation of their on-going efforts by visitors who tend to knock on their door on a regular basis, open house or not.

Upon completion, the Landons plan to have at least four "decadent" rooms, in a Bed and Breakfast operation where pampered guests will enjoy nightly 'turn down' service complete with a mint on the pillow, awakening each morning to the fragrant aroma of fresh baked blueberry muffins.

Those who have undertaken their own home renovation projects know all about wood chips, internal dust storms and frayed nerves. Anna said she and her husband try to take regular breaks, but their dedication to the project and their mutual delight at each completed stage provide a united front of exhilaration and unrelenting high energy levels.

Those contemplating a similar projects need only remember one thing, Anna said.

"You have to know it's what you really want."

*Piece by piece. Phil and Anna Landon have put their heart and soul into the restoration of Didsbury's historic Hiebert House. But while the work is worthwhile just to see a piece of history preserved, it also presents a unique opportunity for the Landons to offer a one of a kind bed and breakfast spot once the restoration work is complete. ## Funny People

Why would someone choose to officiate games,
You can't enter that under blessed,
Officials are cursed as the best of the worst,
In the dressing room, still getting dressed.

Who'd ever accept a job trying to tell,
Some guy who's named Hockey Capone,
That he is a twit, cause that's what the book says,
Take or leave it, and do it alone.

Get hounded and hated and called a no head,
Duck stick, fist or puck, as they come,
Officially: wise with sharp mind and sharp eyes,
Unofficially: official bum!

Free entry? Free whistle? Free black and white shirt?
Forget it? They gotta be nuts?
What do they find bubbly about any job,
Where one half of the score hates your guts.

Ice hockey officials. Does anyone have,
The answer to how they get through,
That's probably something no one really knows,
But here's one thing, we're lucky they do.

Parkland Agri Services receives warehousing certification

It's an important day at Parkland Agri Services, as they have just received Phase III Certification of their warehouse facilities for both the Didsbury and Crossfield locations from the Crop Protection Institute. Certification signifies that their facilities comply in full with the requirements of the Institute's Warehousing Standards in minimizing the risks associated with chemical storage to employees, the public and the environment.

The Warehousing Standards represent a united response by the crop protection industry to public concerns about the safe storage of agricultural chemicals. The Standards were evolved by a Crop Protection Institute committee composed of industry personnel. Their implementation was guided by a committee of key stakeholders which included members of the Institute, Canadian Association of Pest Control Officials, independent dealers and retailers and representatives of the warehousing and insurance industries.

Essentially, the Standards are designed to protect industry employees, the public and the environment. They focus on three primary warehousing components: first construction and structural requirements to minimize the risks arising from fire spills, flooding, explosions and other chemical storage accidents. Second, employee training to minimize risks such as personal injury, occupational illness, insufficient training, unsafe equipment and inadequate emergency response training. Third, documentation to minimize the risk of products where information about chemical content, degree of hazard and method of containment is not immediately accessible.

The Warehousing Standards are national standards, whose benefits will be felt wherever agricultural chemicals are stored and sold in Canada. They demonstrate the commitment of crop protection industry to the continuing improvement of Canadian agriculture.

Parkland Agri Services has developed an Environmental Team within the company that ensures all Standards have been met in order to receive certification, as well as ensuring that these Standards are maintained. Preparing for Phase III Certification has been an ongoing project for the past three years and has involved a lot of hard work and time by Parkland employees who are dedicated to ensuring that employees, the community, and the environment are protected.

In order to make the purpose and importance of the Warehousing Standards better understood, Parkland Agri Services welcomes warehouse tours by members of the media, schools, 4-H clubs, farm groups and interested members of the community.

For more information, please contact either of Parkland's offices in Didsbury (335-3055) or Crossfield (946-4588).

4-H entry age drops to nine

Special to the Review

Young Albertans can now join 4-H at age nine instead of waiting until they are 10-years-old.

The age change becomes effective September 1, 1995. Club leaders and 4-H councils were notified of the change earlier this year.

Roots of the age requirement change are in a petition made to the Alberta 4-H Council last year by the Northeast Regional Council.

"The provincial council consulted with the 4-H community between March and July last year. Based on their findings, the council recommended to the department that the entry age of 4-H members could be lowered from 10 to nine," said

Ted Youck, head of the home economics and 4-H branch.

As well, a 4-H staff committee assessed potential economic and organizational impacts of such a change on the Alberta 4-H program. "As a result of the committee's and council's findings, Walter Paszkowski, Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development's minister officially approved the age criterion change," Youck said.

Age in the 4-H program is considered the age of a club member by January 1 of the current club year.

With Alberta's change, Ontario is the only remaining province with the age 10 qualification.

Grizzlys take the lead

• Olds team takes first two games in play-off series

by Ivan Warawa
Review writer

Getting prepared for the play-offs is nothing new for the Olds Grizzlys who have made the cut the past four years. This first round of play-offs for 1995, the Grizzlys faced the Lloydminster Blazers.

Even with some players out of the line-up like speedsters Jim Lawrence and Richard Latimer, the Grizzlys came out with a bang and scored two goals within the first 5 minutes of play against the Blazers last Friday. The shot clock was close but the Blazers could not capitalize on any of the scoring chances in this first period.

Going into the second with a two goal cushion, the Grizzlys added to the scoreboard with a goal from Danny Heilman at the 11:45 mark on the power play. Finally, at the 14:51 mark, the Blazers scored to put them on the scoreboard making the score after two, 3-1.

Penalties were few and far between with only five called in the first two periods of play. This game was somewhat of a sleeper until the third period started.

With one assist on the third goal, John Pouzar got another as Lucas Gergel scored near the half way point. Shortly after Pouzar scored to take a commanding lead, the Grizzlys' Sheldon Szamata scored a goal on a real runaway. Blazers got two more goals in this period with only six shots on net. One more goal was also added to the lead by Grizzlys Captain, Josh Erdman to end this game with a convincing score of 7-3.

John Pouzar played well enough to be chosen as star of the game.

Blazers had to play catch up hockey entering Saturday night's contest in the series. I didn't expect this game to be much closer than the last, and it looked that way after the first two periods of play.

There was one goal a piece for each team in the first period and then followed the same route in the second period. It looked as though the Blazers were here to play this game rough and tough till the final buzzer.

The third period presented the game that all the fans came out to see as the Grizzlys exploded with seven goals and in return, the Glaz-ers got shut out.

What once seemed to be a close game, something suddenly went right for one team and nothing right for the other. There could have been a few stars of this game, but it was hard to pick just one. A player like

Did you ever want to experience the excitement and adventure of the underwater world as it looks to a scuba diver? Have you ever looked at films or photos of beautiful and fascinating aquatic creatures or of a coral reef and thought about how you would like to experience such a setting up close as a scuba diver can? Have you ever just thought about learning how to scuba dive?

Scuba divers experience not only such beauty, but also other sensations that are unique to diving. Breathing underwater and floating weightless like an astronaut in space are a few of these sensations specific to scuba diving and even more will come with training. Underwater photography, deep diving, rescue diving, wreck diving and night diving are a few more options that open up when you start from scratch at a scuba exposure clinic. A scuba exposure clinic provides a half hour audiovisual presentation, a 15 minute talk from the instructor and a one hour pool session that includes a lesson as well as playtime. If you decide you like scuba after participating in an exposure clinic, then you might just want to register and participate in a scuba certification course. In the certification course, you will develop further skills and knowledge that will be necessary to make diving safe and enjoyable for you.

At the Didsbury Aquatic Centre, we don't have any beautiful marine life, nor do we have any spectacular coral reef, but we do have two scuba exposure clinics scheduled to run! Register for either the Tuesday, April 4 or the Thursday, April 6 clinic and enjoy a scuba session from 8-10 p.m. that will introduce you to the wonders of scuba diving. Should you enjoy the experience or if you already know you want to take a scuba certification course, then you can register in our scheduled course that will run the May 5-7 weekend. Discover scuba and your underwater adventures will just be beginning!

DIDSBURY MINOR HOCKEY

Tyke 1 hockey highlights

Special to the Review

Didsbury Tykes 1 hockey team ended their 1994-'95 hockey season on a winning note this past weekend, winning the A-side final at an invitational tournament held in Trochu. It was a small tournament, with three other teams from the surrounding area participating.

Although the games were quite one-sided, with Didsbury taking a commanding lead early in their first game against Rockyford, both teams played with enthusiasm and enjoyed the game. Coaches, Mike Jackson and Doug Miller tried to hold back some of our more experienced players in order to keep the game more even and enjoyable for both teams. Rockyford never gave up and played hard till the final buzzer.

The second game against Three Hills started out not quite as one-sided, with the first goal being scored well into the first period of the game. The teams seemed evenly matched at the outset, but then Didsbury had some great scoring chances which they capitalized on, putting Didsbury ahead with a substantial lead. Midway through the second period, Coach Jackson made a goalie change, putting in an inexperienced, but very enthusiastic goal tender, Mitch McCargar, who managed to make some saves in net, (much to his mother's surprise and delight!!), and kept Three Hills down to 3 goals. Scorers for Didsbury were Jordan Meyer, who played one of his best games of the season, Lee Stevens, Adam Larson, Bobby Morgan, Corey McKewen, Brad Edwards and Mat May.

All in all it was a nice way to end for the kids, on a winning note, although from a parent/spectator point of view, it wasn't nearly as exciting as the few games played over the season who were more evenly matched in ability and who played the game for the fun of playing rather than for the sake of winning. Even though our Tykes didn't win many games over the season, it was a lesson well learned, as you have to lose some games in order to learn how to win. This team played together and learned to work as a team, not relying on one or two players to carry the game. And that team concept is now paying off.

Anyway, here's to the close of another, and to some, their first hockey season, and to a job well done for all the players just for being out there and playing the game!

Dollar moves into airport with cookies

Worldwide Dollar Rent A Car is in the big league with over 1300 locations in 60 countries. In Canada, until a few months ago, the company had a near invisible profile. Now they are in the starting blocks to pursue an aggressive expansion course.

The first major change for the Canadian operation was its acquisition by the internationally renowned SkyLink group of companies. Now they have stepped up Dollar's in-terminal airport visibility by opening two locations at Pearson International, Toronto, Canada's busiest airport. The locations are at Terminals One and Two. Service for Terminal Three will continue to be provided from the Constellation Hotel. Dollar is also in-terminal at Halifax, Ottawa, Calgary, and Winnipeg, and services arriving passengers at Vancouver Airport and Montreal's Dorval.

To mark their arrival at Pearson, the staff of Dollar distributed cookies—to their surprised competitors.

Dollar is moving quickly to open new franchises across the country, with particular emphasis on airports. Said SkyLink chairman Surjit Babra: "Because of the strength of the Dollar name throughout the world, we anticipate a rapid growth in rentals at all our airport locations, but we will also be widening the base of our local operations and we have developed a strong expansion-oriented business plan that will put Dollar on the map in a big way."

SkyLink has extensive international travel experience ranging from supplying planes and helicopters for United Nations relief and peace keeping operations to operating a retail travel group.

Marketing Director Tony Jones, who helped guide another Canadian car rental company through its most successful growth years said: "That experience will prove invaluable in developing innovative new business methods that will set us apart from the competition."

Welsh mine-tour

The coal mines of South Wales were once suppliers to the world of anthracite coal for ships and industry. The mines, known to locals as the "Pits" spawned books and films like How Green Was My Valley and The Corn is Green. Now a former coal-mine in the Rhondda Valley, has been opened as a tourist centre.

At the Lewis Merthyr Colliery visitors, kitted out with lamps and helmets, take part in a tour that recreates the sights, sounds and smells of the colliery. They help detonate their own explosion and ride an underground track through the twisting tunnels to the surface. There they can visit the Black Gold exhibit showing the culture and character of the Rhondda through three generations of a mining family. Admission is $10.40 for adults, $8.93 for children.

Grizzlys

Marek Tatar comes out shining almost every game he plays but the unsung hero Danny Heilman had a great game and received the honors for star of the game.

The rest of the teams of the AJHL were in action on the first rounds as well. To quickly run down what happened, over the weekend all the winning teams are two games up on their opponents: Canucks over the Bonneyville Pontiacs, Ft. MacMurray over the Royals and Sherwood Park over the St. Albert Saints.

The Grizzlys next games are in Lloydminster on March 14 and 15. A sweep is possible.

Floor hockey a big hit at DHS

by Robert Magee
Review writer

Five teams, consisting of four players and one goalie, are currently battling it out with one another for top spot in the intramural floor hockey league. With exceptional goal tending, passing and shooting, each team has at least one win and all teams are still in contention for first overall.

But in most cases those fundamental skills alone are not what's winning the hockey game, it's the checking and rough play that can give a team the edge to win. In the game of hockey there is always some physical use of the body, but at times it appears to be getting out of hand. In order to put a stop to these occurrences, referee Kent Drever issued a warning to all players stating that if any more violent plays occur, the intramural league will be cancelled. Since then there has been less physical play, resulting in a much more sportsman-like, yet entertaining game.

When asked about the physical play, player Clint Platt said, "As long as it doesn't get out of hand, I think it just adds to the intensity." And for those who play hockey, they know the game is full of intensity.
